An Update From Bodman PLC

To Our Clients, Colleagues and Friends:

Bodman is actively monitoring and taking measures to adapt to the rapidly evolving situation regarding the global Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic. As the situation is increasingly impacting our local communities, the health and welfare of our employees, clients and their respective families is first and foremost in our thoughts. Additionally, we want to assure our clients that, despite these challenging times, we are committed to maintaining our operations with minimal disruption and continuing to provide the same exceptional level of service and attention that you have come to expect from Bodman.

At this time, all of our offices remain open and equipped to accommodate all of our clients' needs. However, effective immediately, we are transitioning to a remote work environment for our employees who can work remotely. Our IT team has trained our employees so that they can work remotely, securely and seamlessly on our firm systems. We will also continue to have critical employees on site as necessary. We plan to re-assess work arrangements for our personnel on a weekly basis and will provide updates, as needed.

Internally, we are following the recommendations and guidelines of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and our local authorities and have implemented several precautionary measures in an effort to maintain a healthy workforce and environment. In addition to communicating all healthy habits to our employees, we have cancelled large work related gatherings and are advising all employees to reconsider any non-essential domestic business or personal travel planned within the next few weeks and, if possible, to postpone it or to conduct meetings virtually if possible.

We have launched a COVID 19 Response Team web page with resources and links to information to help you navigate this rapidly changing situation. We will be updating the site regularly with new information.
