Sinéad Redmond Helps Client End Abusive Marriage

Sinéad finalized a divorce for Ms. A., a pro bono client who was previously in a long-term marriage to a controlling and abusive husband. While in the relationship, Ms. A. was not allowed to work or receive an education. With Sinéad's counsel, the court granted Ms. A. a divorce as well as spousal support, which she plans to use to help raise their two children who have special needs. Ms. A. now has the freedom to stand on her own and recently applied to professional programs in the hope of becoming a dental hygienist.

Sinéad Redmond Helps her Client Reclaim his Family Home

Pro Bono client Mr. F purchased his family home in Detroit. the property has been in the family for decades, with his father growing up in it. After purchasing the property from a family member, Mr. F found that the prior taxes had not been paid off entirely. Without his knowledge, the city placed the matter into tax foreclosure and sold the property to a new purchaser. Working with Mr. F, Sinéad filed a quiet title action and negotiated with the property management company who purchased the property at the foreclosure auction to reach a resolution where Mr. F now holds the deed to the property and has been consistently paying off the taxes for the property.
