Adomas Rauckis focuses his practice on mergers and acquisitions, corporate governance matters, public securities offerings, and venture capital financing.

Entrepreneurship runs deep in Adomas's blood. As the grandson of immigrants who founded and grew a successful tool and die business in Detroit, Adomas was exposed early to the dedication, resilience, and long-term vision required to build an enduring enterprise. That experience fostered a deep respect for entrepreneurs and an appreciation for the practical challenges they face. These perspectives inform his approach to legal counsel.

In his corporate practice, Adomas helps business leaders and investors navigate key moments in their growth journeys, including mergers and acquisitions, venture capital financings, public securities matters, and a wide range of general corporate issues. His experience spans transactions across the full spectrum, from billion-dollar public offerings and large-scale corporate acquisitions to sub-million-dollar financing rounds and sales of closely held companies.

Adomas represents emerging companies, established businesses, and investment funds across a broad range of industries, advising clients throughout the business lifecycle; from formation and fundraising to growth, governance, and strategic exits.

Beyond major transactions, clients also turn to Adomas for practical, day-to-day counsel on their ongoing corporate matters. Drawing on both an entrepreneurial mindset and substantial transactional experience, he regularly advises on corporate governance, contract
