David C. Bosman helps banks and other financial institutions make loans to companies and individuals.

David's attention to detail and systematic approach to loan transactions help commercial lenders meet the demands and deadlines of their borrowers. He works side-by-side with his clients to structure, document, and negotiate middle market and commercial real estate loans.

One client wrote about David: "What really sets him apart for me though is his ability to organize complicated deals, and keep all the parties moving along (and understanding their responsibilities)". Be it a single lender formula-based line of credit, or a syndicated transaction with multiple properties in various states, David uses his intellect and diverse practice experience to advise his clients.

David serves in various leadership roles at the firm. He is a member of Bodman's Finance Committee, using his expertise internally to help set the strategic direction of the firm's financial resources.
